Synopsys/Summary:

The short film “Back.” shows the mid-21st century, in which a young research engineer Arlan creates his biggest project ever - The Time Machine. He starts a video-diary to record his progress towards his life-saving mission: returning to the past and detecting his father’s cancer. Just as he completes the mission, the time machine breaks down and it takes him years for repair. Unfortunately, it is not the only problem he faces. The changes he makes in the past create a butterfly effect that deprives him of his other closest one. Now, he has to make a choice: past or present? What will he choose?

Bio:

My name is Kudabay Sultanbek. My father called me that so he wanted me to be king of kings. I was born on the 3rd of April 2000 in the city of Aktau, Kazakhstan. We’re family of three and I’m the only child of my parents.

In 2006, I went to the specialized physics and mathematics school.

In 2012, in order to get a quality education, I entered Aktau Kazakh-Turkish Lyceum, and graduated with excellent grades in 2017.

After school, I won the governor’s scholarship for gifted youth to study in one of the most prestigious universities in the country - “KAZGUU University”, where I currently study at the law school. Recently, after implementing numerous creative projects I was appointed the coordinator of the college media center and I’m sure that it is just the beginning.

Christopher Nolan is the one who inspired me to make films.
